

Summary0

The Mobile Application Environment has unique tools that are available to its developers. When a developer joins the team it's important that the Helpdesk provide them the support they need to be up and running as soon as possible. This document covers the most common requests and questions that developers will go to the Helpdesk for resolution.